COLUMNTex Rickard's Association With Willard-Moran Bout a Guarantee That It Will Go Through as Scheduled.Copyright, 1916, by The Press Publishing Co.

TEX RICKARD'S association with the coming Willard-Moran match is a guarantee that it will go through as scheduled. Rickard has promoted other matches even more important, has guaranteed great purses, and always has made good. His bid of $101,000 for the Johnson-Jettie match carried the rival promoters off their feet. And Rickard would have made good that bid even if the match had been a bloodbath and the gate receipts hadn't been large enough to pay for the resin in the ring.

The only difficulty in the way of an outside promoter who wishes to run a big match in New York City is the law that requires ownership or a year's lease of the club building before a license has been issued. And no doubt Rickard can make an arrangement with some club already in existence, so that he can run his show under a license already granted. If not, he'll take out a year's lease for the club, get the license, and go ahead and fight, even if it costs more, and if no other boys are ever held here under his direction.

THERE'S some talk of the "terrible punishment" given Coffey by Moran.

As a plain matter of fact, Coffey wasn't badly punished. He was struck several heavy blows on the ribs over the heart, which weakened him. He was then knocked down or into the ropes five times. But there wasn't a "terrible" knockdown delivered. Moran hit him hard, but not nearly as hard as in the first fight. Because he didn't have a chance to. After the first visit to the floor Coffey rose in a crouching position, offering only passive resistance and ready to drop as soon as he was hit again. He went down from blows that landed high instead of squarely on the vital spots. There was no jar enough in them to drop him, but he was knocked down. A few minutes after the end of the bout Coffey was as good as before it began.

If Moran had been fresher himself he would have hit Coffey much harder and much more effectively in the last rally, and probably would have finished him with a clean knockout. But Moran was very tired and weak in the seventh and eighth rounds from the effect of the hard upper cuts that Coffey landed when Moran missed some of his earlier punches. It took Frank a few minutes of clever stalling to get his strength back for the final effort that won the fight for him.

I've had a number of letters from people who made wagers that Moran would win with a knockout. Some say the losers refuse to pay, claiming that the fight was stopped because Gibson threw in the sponge, and so there was no knockout. Coffey was officially knocked out. He was hopeless, in the opinion of his own manager, when the sponge was thrown in, and the sponge was tossed to save him from taking an unnecessary beating. According to the rules and the custom of the ring this is technically a knockout, just as much as if the boxer had been knocked senseless for a week.

Any one who refuses to pay a wager on the idea that Coffey "wasn't knocked out" is simply wasting.

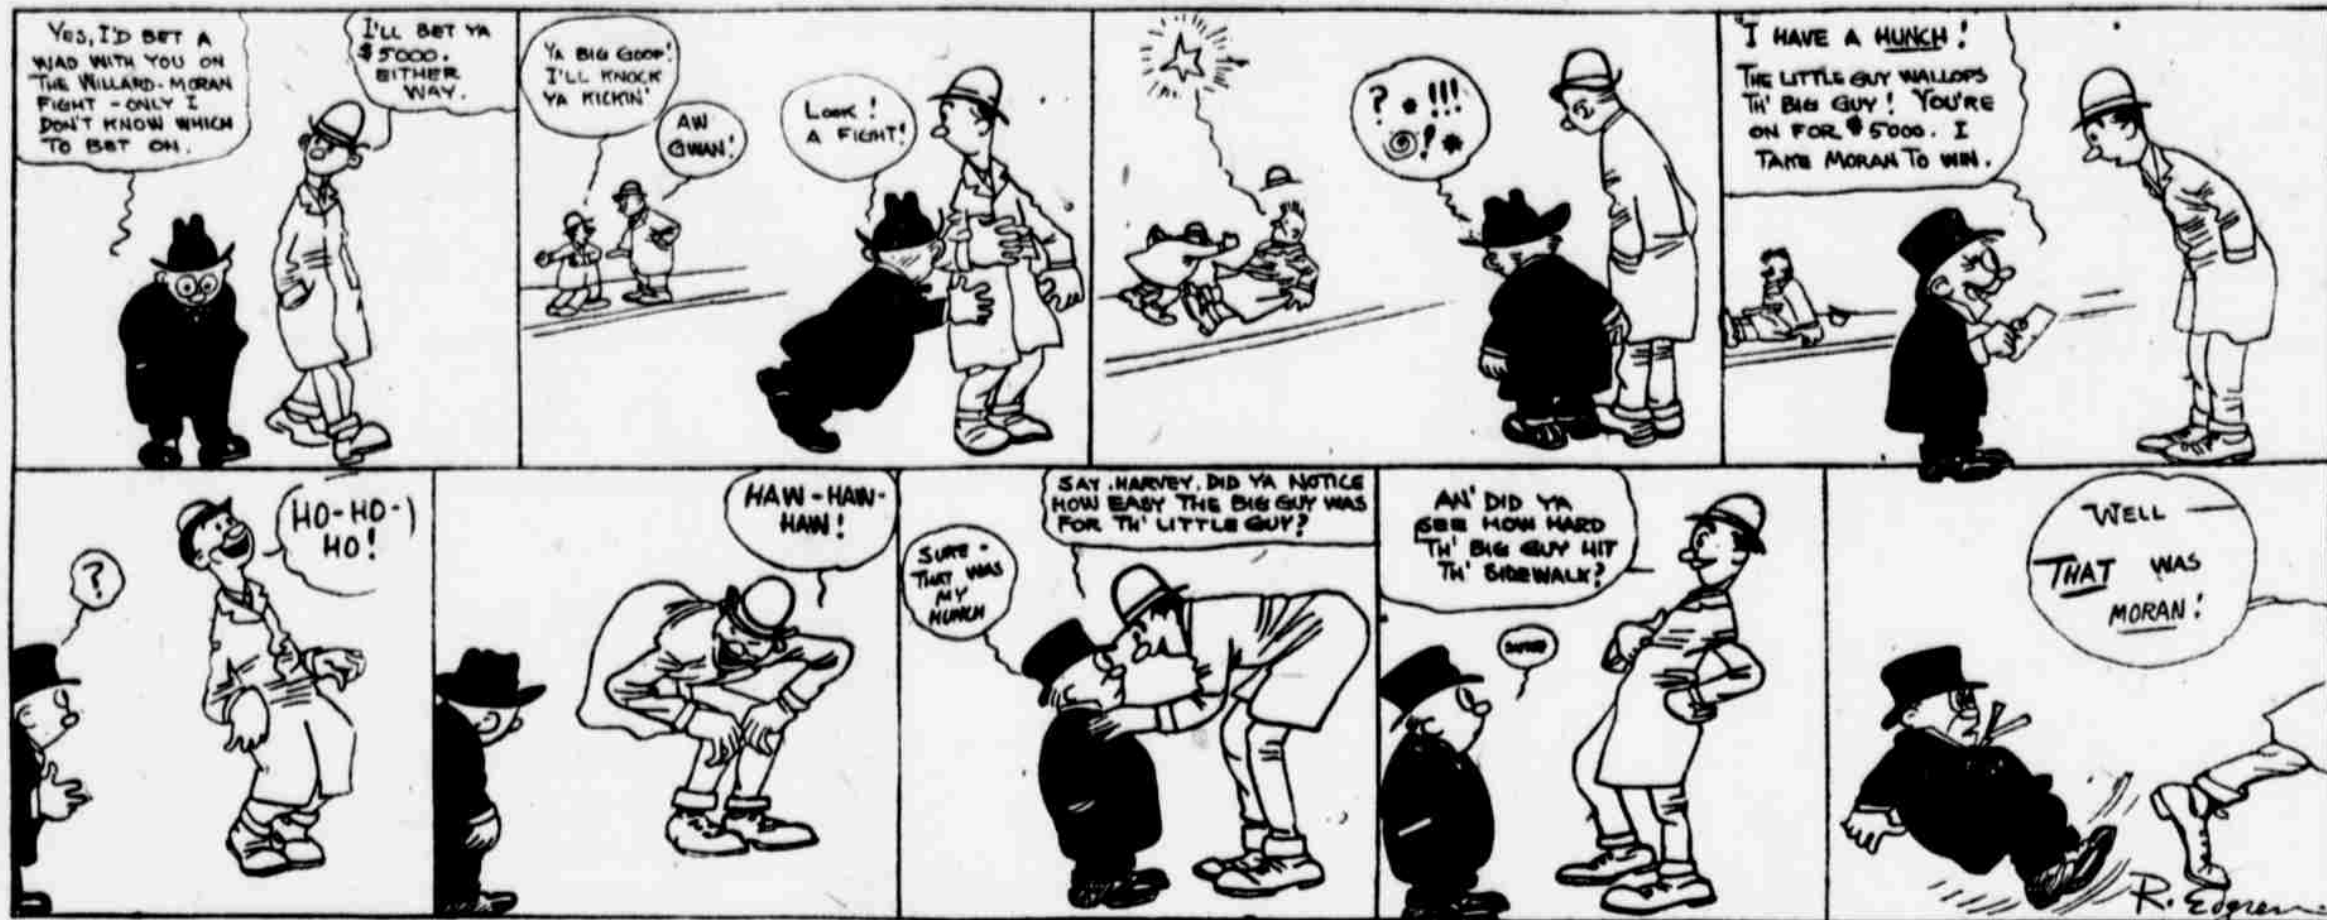

BENNY LEONARD is to box Joe Rivers here at 135 pounds. This will be a harder bout for Billy Gibson's lightweight than the match with Walsh, which seems to have fallen through. Rivers is a real fighter, always aggressive, a hard hitter, and dangerous.

THE principal danger in boxing Frank Welsh lies in getting all out of breath chasing him around the ring. No one but a well-trained sprinter should tackle Welsh. Trying to catch him is no job for a Marathoner.

It's said that Frank Gotch has refused an offer of $15,000 to come to New York and wrestle Joe Stecher (whoever he may be). Gotch says a Stecher bout would "draw between $75,000 and $100,000 in Omaha or some other middle western city where wrestling flourishes."

He doesn't mention Chicago. The very peculiar match between Gotch and Hackenschmidt settled wrestling in that city. No great effort has ever been made to induce Gotch to wrestle in Chicago since. It is no longer one of those unscientific communities where wrestling flourishes.

New Baseball Sensation!
President Haughton of
Braves Has Wrist Watch

Even Harvard Boys Surprised to See New Magnate Glancing Towards Left Hand to Tell the Time—Has Man's Job
Now He Declares, in Speaking of Entry into Diamond Affairs.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—What do you know about this? Although he has been president of the Braves less than a week, Percy D. Haughton, the famous football coach, has already introduced something new in baseball—a wrist watch. Even the Harvard boys who dropped in to congratulate him at landing his big baseball job were surprised to see him glancing down towards his left hand to tell the time.

Haughton, for eight years autocrat of Harvard football and arch enemy of all newsmen, has turned over a new leaf in his capacity of president-elect of the Boston National Baseball team, and is now chatting amiably with all members of the fourth estate, calling the baseball reporters by their first names and treating them as if they were boon companions of his college days. Haughton, speaking of his new job, says: "Just because I have helped Harvard to win on the football field, I have a real man's job cut out for me on the baseball field of endeavor. It's going to be no child's play. I'm anxious to see Stallings. I know him pretty well already and he's a man all the way through. Stallings and I will have no misunderstandings. As I said, I must feel my way along, and as soon as I begin to get the run of things and find out how much or how little time I will have I will be better able to tell Haughton whether or not I can continue with the football team. Meanwhile, Harvard must wait."

"I have thought a lot of baseball lately, of course. I am not as yet the President of the Braves, but I will be to-morrow. I will not say what policy I will maintain in regard to the Braves. I have been called the autocrat of Harvard's football."

"Maybe I have been, but that's no reason that I am to be the autocrat of the Braves. I, as President of the Braves, will represent some big moneyed interests. They may later take an active part in the business part of the team."

News of Sports Told in Shorts

A peculiar case presented itself to the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association yesterday after a member of the Crescent A. C. basketball team, Davidson, is the name of the player in question, and it was learned at the A. A. U. headquarters that he had transgressed the rules in more ways than one. According to a report from New Brunswick, N. J., Davidson, who is an ex-Westeyanite, acted as coach to the Rutgers College basketball team last year, and, of course, without being reinstated, a man cannot discharge the duties of coach one year and play on an amateur team the next.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 14.—Grandstand Rice of Englewood won the championship in the advertisers' golf tournament yesterday, his gross score for twenty-two holes being 337. E. T. Manson of Framingham was second in Class A with 341, and Marshall Whitlock of Baltimore third with 344.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 14.—Official announcement was made today that the United States Naval Academy and the University of West Virginia football teams have been matched to play in Annapolis, Md., on Oct. 21.

Louis A. Servatius hung up a record average of 10-10-10 in the national Class C 151 lb. belt-line championship tournament yesterday at the Morningstar Hill Academy. The veteran amateur surpassed the figures made by Francis S. Appleby, the Columbia student, last year. Servatius rolled the ivory globe along the ball-line for six double-figure runs. He stroked was of feather-like delicacy, so that he completed his first

AMHERST WON'T TACKLE DARTMOUTH THIS YEAR.
AMHERST, Mass., Jan. 14.—The inclusion of a game with Cornell on the schedule of the Massachusetts Agricultural College football team next fall and the dropping of Dartmouth from the Amherst schedule were features of the day. The Cornell game will come on Oct. 21, Harvard at Cambridge; Oct. 28, Worcester Polytechnic Institute at Amherst; Nov. 25, Springfield Y. M. C. A. College at Springfield.

THREE CHAMPIONSHIP
GOLF COURSES TO BE SELECTED TO-DAY.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—The United States Golf Association holds its annual meeting here to-day. The important business on the docket is the election of officers and the selection of the three championship courses. As has been printed before, Merion, Nassau and Piping Rock are in the field for the amateur, and Merion seems almost sure to be chosen. The candidates for the open are Minikahda of Minneapolis, Kent of Grand Rapids, Detroit and Englewood. Minikahda and Kent seem to be the leading rivals, and Englewood's chances are almost nil. Four clubs, all in the East, are on the list for the women's championship, and the race for the trophy is an open one. New Haven, Belmont Spring, near Boston; Greenwich and Baitrose are the quartette which will vie for the privilege of entertaining the women next fall.

BAKER WILL START IN RACE
AT BROOKLYN COLLEGE MEET

Homer Baker, the international half-mile champion, who recently resigned from the New York A. C., and who it is said will soon take up his residence in Chicago, will be among the flyers who will start in the 1,000-yard handicap at the annual games of Brooklyn College in the Fourteenth Regiment Armory on Saturday night. Willie Gordon, the New York A. C. chief point runner, also is a late entrant for the 1,000-yard event. Among the other starters will be Joe Higgins, the speedy Boston A. C. middle-distance who defeated Meredith in the McAlester Thousand; Johnny Overton of Yale, the intercollegiate cross-country champion of the United States; and Mike Devaney, the pride of the Millrose A. C. No middle-distance race in years has received so classy an entry.

MacK Stops Frankie Nelson.
LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 14.—Frankie Mack of Haverhill, split the left eye of Frankie Nelson of Brooklyn as badly last night in the second round that Referee Tommy Sullivan stopped the bout on the advice of the club physician at the Uxley Club.

Fistic News and Gossip

By John Pollock

George Munro has arranged his card for next Tuesday night's show at the Palace A. C. of Yorkers. He has secured the signatures of Billy Placencia and Benjie McCoy, two local favorites for the main event.

Joe Willard says that he has an engagement to be married. He is engaged to a girl named Mary, and they will discuss the offer for a day with Moran here. Joe declares that he has no signed articles or agreed to anything regarding the bout, although he admits the offer of a $48,000 purse a good proposition.

Tom Andrews, the Milwaukee promoter, and Eddie Murray of Buffalo, are anxious to get the Lewis-Wilke battle return match. Andrews has offered Jimmy Johnston a $4,000 offer for the match, while Charlie Murray has made the manager of Madison Square Garden a $5,000 offer for the same match. Madison Square Garden has been anxious to arrange a return match, but Willie Wilke demands too much for the Garden promoter.

Joe winning six consecutive bouts in Philadelphia. Frankie Corbett, the Harlan featherweight boxer, earned the right to meet Jimmy Kilbane, Kilbane and Corbett come together in a six-round bout at the National Sporting Club of Philadelphia to-morrow night. Corbett is to receive $550 for the bout. Kilbane will receive more money that he got when he knocked out Peter Luce at the same club last week.

Johnny Ertle, the new heavyweight champion, who meets Jack Sayles at the Harlan Sporting Club on next Friday night, arrived here from Boston yesterday and started in training for his bout with Sayles. Ertle's appearance at the Harlan arena will give local fans their first chance to get a line on the new champion. Harlan Ertle has only appeared in bouts in Brooklyn.

The Clement A. C. of Brooklyn withdrew its dispute with the Zulu Kid yesterday, and immediately the Boxing Commission lifted the ban from the club. The Zulu Kid claimed the club owed him $100. James Wernoff, manager of the Clement A. C., denied this, but paid it anyway, so that he could stage his show to-morrow night between Leach Cross and Walter Mohr.

James Johnston, manager and matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, declares that the proposed fight between Joe Willard and Frankie Moran will not take place at the Garden. Johnston said that the Show Corporation holds the license to conduct boxing matches in the Garden until October, and that this corporation will not take a chance of letting outside promoters enter their precincts.

Record Crowd Sees Home Talent Win Two Games After Dropping First Session in an Exciting Match in Evening World Three-Man Team Bowling Tourney.

SCHEDULE TO-NIGHT
Park Row at Metropolitan.

EVERY bowling fan north of the Harlem River must have crowded into the Bronx Palace alleys last night to witness The Evening World series between the two rival Bronx academies, the Hunts Point and the Palace. Every miss as well as every mark brought forth a roar of applause from the scores of rosters on either side. The visiting Hunts Pointers were fortunate in taking the first game, for the home team captured the second and final sessions.

The close and hard-fought battle of the opening session started the fans in their wild demonstrations. Bronx's Palace bowlers led the way until the end of the eighth frame, when they had but a three-pin advantage. The visitors then forged to the front and Capt. Brookstone and Pat both struck out in the last frame, clinching the single victory of the night for the Hunts Point trio.

Again in the second game the home team got off to a good start and in the middle of this session were leading by 50 pins. The visitors could not catch up with Brenner's bowlers, but they made the game interesting and lost by only 18 pins. Rupprecht substituted in Lippmann's position and strengthened the Palace trio considerably. Lippmann made a poor showing in the first affair.

The home team made a runaway race of the third game, winning out by 66 pins. Pals and Brookstone dropped badly in this session, while Walsh made the high score of 212 for the night. Walsh, Bender and Price won through the thirty frames with but a single miss for each. Sol White and the numerous rosters went home quite hoarse. The scores:

Giants Can Again Be Made Into
Pennant Contender, Says Gaffney

THE Giants are not for sale, and according to the owners of the club there is no deal on, yet Harry Hempstead, the President of the club, and John B. Foster, Secretary of the club, yesterday had luncheon with James E. Gaffney and Robert H. Davis, the men who recently sold their interests in the Braves to Percy Haughton.

Mr. Hempstead said that the meeting was accidental and that nothing was said about buying the Giants. After the luncheon, however, Gaffney hurried to the Grand Central Station to take a train for Boston. Before leaving Gaffney repeated that he would like to buy the Giants along with Harry Sinclair.

"I would like to stay in baseball," in fact, I want to stay in baseball—and nothing would please me better than to own a club in my own town," said Gaffney.

"Furthermore, I should only be too glad to go in with Harry Sinclair in the purchase of the Giants, but, as I said, the proposition, and we discussed the proposition, and decided nothing could be done at present unless Mr. Hempstead lowered his price considerably."

"I regard the Giants as a fine proposition, and they can again be made into a pretty good money maker. I think Sinclair would make a great thing. A club owner, and with the thirty players he controls to pick from he would have a team that would put the club back where it was before it started to slide."

M'LOUGHLIN AND BUNDY
NOT ONLY STAR ATHLETES
WHO ARE IN BAD JUST NOW

It looks as though some of the star athletes of the country have come upon evil days. McLaughlin and Bundy, the famous tennis stars, were the first to get in bad. Owing to the determination of well sporting goods they may be branded as professionals when the United States National Lawn Tennis Association meets next month. Francis Guillet, the world's famous golf player, has also got the sporting goods bug. He plans to open a store in Boston early in April. If he carries out this idea, the United States Golf Association is bound to take away his standing as an amateur.

AUTOMOBILE LICENSES TO BE ISSUED TO-NIGHT.

The New York office of the Secretary of State, located at Broadway and Seventh-street, will be open to-night from 7 to 9 o'clock for the issuing of automobile licenses to owners and chauffeurs who are unable to call during the day. About 125,000 auto licenses and 60,000 chauffeur licenses are to be issued from the local office. Secretary of State Hugo suggests that the 1916 licenses be procured at once in order that the inconvenience and discomfort of the usual wait in line the last few days before Feb. 1 be eliminated as far as possible.

Jockey Club Decides to Eliminate Rule Allowing Geldings 3-Pound Advantage.

At the annual meeting of The Jockey Club the allowance to geldings of three pounds in running races was eliminated from the rules of racing. This means that the conditions of all races will be changed, and it will radically affect the handicapping of horses.

The annual reports of the various committees of the club were read, accepted and placed on file. Messrs. August Belmont, F. R. Sturgis, Schuyler L. Parsons and John Sanford were re-elected stewards of The Jockey Club. At the annual meeting of the stewards of The Jockey Club, held at the office of the club last evening, August Belmont was elected Chairman, F. R. Sturgis, Vice Chairman and H. K. Knapp, Secretary and Treasurer of The Jockey Club for the year 1916. F. R. Hitchcock, H. K. Knapp and Andrew Miller were re-elected a License Committee for the year 1916.

Zbyszko Given Permission to Meet Stecher

Samuel Nachmann, manager of the wrestling tournament now in progress at the Manhattan Opera House, who holds a contract with Wladek Zbyszko to wrestle in the tournament until it ends, was asked to-day if he would allow Zbyszko to meet Joe Stecher, the Nebraska wonder at Madison Square Garden on Jan. 27, which match has just been arranged. Nachmann said:

"My contract with the theatre where we are now appearing prevents us from participating in any similar affair. Nevertheless, I am sure that Zbyszko came to me, however, with a strong plea, and he permitted to meet Stecher, stating that he was satisfied that he could pin him to the mat. He was so insistent that I permitted the bout to be arranged. Our percentage of the receipts goes to those to whom we have contractual obligations, so that this arrangement is in no way interested except to give Zbyszko a chance to make good."
